David Harris "As It Happens" should undertake a rigorous review of some of the sources and interviewees upon whom it relies when dealing with issues relating to radical Islam.

A lengthy study by the respected Investigative Project on Terrorism (IPT), Washington, DC, documents the divisive and radical tendencies of the Muslim Public Affairs Council (MPAC). Yet AIH producers are enthusiastically advertising their plans to have an MPAC official figure prominently in today's As It Happens' coverage of the Congressional counterradicalization hearings.

"Far from being the zealous champion of civil rights that it presents itself to be," says the IPT, "the Muslim Public Affairs Council (MPAC) has followed a consistent pattern of defending designated terrorist organizations and their supporters, opposing U.S. counterterrorism efforts and spouting anti-Semitic rhetoric." The study is available at
